Application Fraud & Misrepresentation

When applying for positions at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, any misrepresentation made by you or omission of facts on your résumé, during the interview process, and/or on any other application material may prevent you from being employed or, if hired, may be sufficient cause for termination. You must certify that all statements made by you and information provided by you during the application and interview process are true and complete.

Reference Checking

Applying for a specific job authorizes the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution to contact any of your schools, your current and former employers, or other reference for the purpose of verifying information and/or obtaining an account of your work experience and skills. By applying for a job, you agree to hold any and all of your reference sources harmless and free of any liability for releasing such information. Although the process may vary, reference checking is rarely performed prior to an interview. When applying for positions on-line, you will be asked whether or not we can contact your current and former employers.

Employment Eligibility Verification

Consideration for employment at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution will be based on your qualifications and work eligibility. In compliance with the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act, the Institution requires documentation of U.S. citizenship or eligibility for authorized employment and will condition any employment offer on the satisfactory completion of Form I-9, as required by the Act.

Pre-employment Medical Examinations

For some positions, a pre-employment medical examination may be required as a condition of employment. These examinations will be arranged and paid for by the Institution. Failure to successfully complete a pre-employment medical examination will result in a rescinding of the employment offer or termination of employment.
