Bridging the gap between observations and models

Are we getting the most out of observational and modelling approaches or could we learn more by bridging the gap between the two?

We could 'bridge the gap' in many ways…
- do we want to?
- what are the obstacles?
- how have others bridged that gap?