

JUNE 16, 2022

Creating synergy through art and science

A collaboration between local artists and WHOI scientists yields engaging perspectives on our ocean world

- GIVE
- EXPLORE
- SHOP

Meet our New Decade Actions

WHOI-led projects receives UN endorsement

Four projects receives Endorsed Action status as a part of the UN Decade of Ocean Science

4 potential solutions for corals in crisis
Against the clock, WHOI researchers try to develop innovative solutions to improve reef resiliency

Image of the week: Perkins School for the Blind sets sail

Students from the school joined WHOI's Amy Bower on a brief ocean field trip

WHOI x Cape Clasp launches a new coral t-shirt
Get yours today! All proceeds go toward ocean science

WHOI IN THE NEWS

THE BOSTON GLOBE
Blue is the new green: How business can protect the ocean

CBS NEWS
Woods Hole underwater robotics engineer inspiring next Black female scientists

ACCUWEATHER
Sinking mid-Atlantic coast will increase impacts of rising sea level, study finds

WICKED LOCAL
Is a hurricane coming? Climate prediction center NOAA sees MA storm clouds gathering

Where are WHOI Ships Now?

START TRACKING →

An illustration of a large blue and white research ship sailing on the ocean.

- GIVE NOW
- SHOP WHOI

Follow us #WHOI

